Who we are
The Gwich’in Renewable Resources Board (GRRB) is the main instrument of wildlife, fish, and forest management in the Gwich’in Settlement Area (GSA). The Board acts in the public interest, representing all the parties to the Gwich’in Comprehensive Land Claim Agreement – the Gwich’in, the people of the Northwest Territories, and all Canadians.

What we want to be
The GRRB is an exemplary model of renewable resources co-management. Working with its partners, the Board plays a leadership role in ensuring that the fish, forests, and wildlife of the Gwich’in Settlement Area remain healthy and sustainable.

What we do
The GRRB works in cooperation with the Gwich’in people, governments and stakeholders, and in accordance with the Gwich’in Comprehensive Land Claim Agreement to effectively protect, conserve, and manage renewable resources in the Gwich’in Settlement Area. It does this in a respectful, transparent, communicative, and inclusive manner, using the best available traditional and scientific knowledge.

What we believe in
• Respecting the land and the Gwich’in people
• Communicating with communities respectfully, clearly and continually
• Encouraging teamwork throughout our activities
• Respecting and embracing traditional and scientific knowledge

Our Goals
• Identify and prioritize needs, and develop and implement renewable resources management plans and research
• Strengthen Gwich’in participation and use of traditional and scientific knowledge on matters that affect wildlife, fish, forest, habitat, and environment
• Provide quality advice to governments on matters that affect wildlife, fish, forest, habitat, and environment, in accordance with GRRB’s Consultation Policy
• Strengthen and maintain strong, positive and respectful working relationships with Gwich’in participants, co-management partners, and stakeholders
• Maintain an effective, efficient, exemplary administration
• Ensure a healthy, positive and respectful working environment where staff enjoy working
